

STUDENT SCRIPT 1 -Project GOAL LESSON #7

Scenario 1: You are at home finishing a project that is due tomorrow, when your friend calls.

Student A: Hello?

Student B: Hi _____. What are you up to? Me and a bunch of people are going to see that new movie at the theater. We'll pick you up in 20 minutes, ok?

Student A: I really want to go with you but I'm finishing my project for science class.

Student B: Aww, come on! I didn't do my science project either. Just forget about it and we can ask for extra credit before the end of the semester. We'll pass the class somehow.

Student A: I don't want to just pass. I really want to keep my grades up.

Student B: Don't be such a nerd. Are you gonna pick school work over your friends?

Scenario 2: You come home from school and your mom or dad is in a bad mood. Your parent starts yelling at you about not finishing your chores.

Student A: Hi, mom (or dad).

Parent: (angry) Oh, it's you! I just had a terrible day cleaning this mess that you were supposed to take care of yesterday.

Student A: I know. I meant to get that done but I had a lot of homework I had to do yesterday.

Parent: Oh, sure you did! I saw you playing that video game in your room. Don't give me those excuses! You're such a lazy slob!

STUDENT SCRIPT 2 -Project GOAL LESSON #7

Scenario 3: You are at the mall with a group of friends and you see that your friend just put a shirt in his pocket (or purse).

Student A: Aren't you gonna pay for that?

Student B: How? I don't have any money!

Student A: So you're just gonna take it?

Student B: Aww, don't be so innocent. We do this all the time. How do you think we get new clothes? Our parents don't give us any money. What do you expect us to do?

Student A: I don't know, but you could get in big trouble for shoplifting.

Student B: What, do you think you're better than me? Go ahead, you take something to prove you're not gonna tell on us.

Scenario 4: A student approaches you at school and gets in your face.

Student B: Hey, _____ I heard what you've been saying about me and I'm gonna end it right now.

Student A: I haven't said anything. What's your problem?

Student B: You're my problem. You and your big mouth. You ready to back it up?
