

TEACHER SCRIPT -Project GOAL LESSON #7

SAMPLE Scenario 1A: You are in a class taking a test. The teacher is on the phone, distracted for the moment, when a student sitting in the desk behind you gets your attention.

Student B: Hey, _____ let me see your test real quick. I know you know the answers, and I got no idea.

Student A: You should have studied for the test. I'm not giving you the answers.

Students B: Come on! Please?

Student A: No!

Teacher: (takes your test away from you) You two were talking during the test. You both get a zero for cheating.

Student A: (loudly) I was not cheating! You better give me my test back, right now, Mrs. Jones, or you'll be sorry!

Teacher: Go to the principal's office, right now!!

SAMPLE Scenario 1B: You are in a class taking a test. The teacher is on the phone, distracted for the moment, when a student sitting in the desk behind you gets your attention.

Student B: Hey, _____ let me see your test real quick. I know you know the answers, and I got no idea.

Student A: You should have studied for the test. I'm not giving you the answers.

Students B: Come on! Please?

Student A: No!

Teacher: (takes your test away from you) You two were talking during the test. You both get a zero for cheating.

Student A: (calmly) Mrs. Jones, I need to speak to you about what happened. Can we talk after class?

Teacher: Sure, but I don't know what there is to talk about.

Student A: I wasn't cheating. _____ was asking me for the answers when you were on the phone. I said no. If you check our tests, you'll see that I didn't let him (or her) copy. We don't have the same answers.

Teacher: Oh, I can see that. Thanks for explaining that to me. Can you come in at lunch and finish your test? I'm sorry about the misunderstanding.